THE VIEW FROM 30,000 FEET: A SURVEY OF NATIONAL SECURITY LAW

Whether involving separation of powers, drone strikes, Guantanamo, FISA warrants, or the International Criminal Court, national security law is an extremely complex and evolving area of law. This full-day seminar introduces this topic from various perspectives, including the U.S. and legal architecture surrounding principles of self-defense, the laws of armed conflict, law enforcement approaches, intelligence collection, detention issues, war crimes tribunals, and cybersecurity. As the inaugural program of the Center for National Security and Human Rights Law, this seminar sets the stage for future programming in this increasingly relevant field, including lectures, classes, and scholarship.

PROGRAM SCHEDULE SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 2019

8:30-9:00

Registration and Continental Breakfast

9:00-9:15

Welcome and Announcements

Prof. Richard Warner
Professor of Law, Chicago-Kent College of Law
John Geiringer
Partner, Barack Ferrazzano Kirschbaum &
Nagelberg LLP

9:15-10:15

Just Wars & Separation of Powers

John Geiringer
Partner, Barack Ferrazzano Kirschbaum &
Nagelberg LLP

John will explore jus ad bellum, the principles by which nations may resort to armed conflict under international law, as well as the manner in which national security responsibilities are divided among the three branches of the U.S. government. He will discuss principles of self-defense, collective security, and humanitarian intervention, and address potential limitations on the President's ability to initiate and sustain hostilities abroad.

10:15-11:15

Laws of Armed Conflict

Adam Weber
Professor, Chicago-Kent College of Law, and Former Trial Attorney, International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, Office of the Prosecutor

Adam will provide an overview of the laws of armed conflict (LOAC), otherwise known as jus in bello and international humanitarian law. Drawing on his real-world experience as a war crimes prosecutor, Adam will discuss the fundamental elements of LOAC, such as military necessity, distinction, proportionality, and humanity, and will address the key sources of those elements, including the Hague Convention, the Geneva Conventions and related Protocols, and other relevant agreements.

11:15-11:30

BREAK

11:30-12:30

Intelligence and Cyber Law

CPT James Dever
Judge Advocate, U.S. Army

Information warfare is fundamental to modern conflict. Jim will discuss the countervailing interests of privacy versus security, and explore the general contours of the Intelligence Community. Further, he will examine domestic and international law as applied to the cyber domain and navigate self-defense, preemption, and sub-use of force contexts.

12:30-1:30

LUNCH

1:30-2:30

UAVs, National Security and the Law

Jarisse Sanborn
General Counsel, American Bar Association and
Brig. Gen. (USAF, ret.)

Jarisse will discuss the role of UAVs in the national security context, including the use of military UAVs in both domestic and armed conflict operations and will discuss the law governing their use.

2:30-3:30

Interrogation and Detention Operations

Jack Dever
Head of AML/Sanctions, Wholesale Banking,
Wells Fargo

Deprivation of liberty and subsequent interrogation of individuals is a common activity during armed conflict that is governed by a large body of international humanitarian law. In this presentation, Jack will focus on unique aspects of this law, as well as the challenges encountered by armed forces when conducting interrogation and detention operations.

3:30-3:45

3:45-4:45

National Security Criminal Law

Barry Jonas
Assistant United States Attorney, US Attorney's Office
Northern District of Illinois

Through the use of actual case studies, Barry will discuss various elements of national security criminal law. These will include an overview of commonly prosecuted crimes, including espionage and the material support for terrorism laws, as well as methods by which those prosecutions are developed, such as through the use of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and the Classified Information Procedures Act (CIPA). He also will address evolving issues, such as the debate over formally designating domestic groups as terrorist organizations.

4:45-5:00
